

THE FIRST STEP IN PROTECTING
YOUR BUSINESS
IS A NETWORK
SECURITY AUDIT

THE FIRST STEP IN PROTECTING YOUR BUSINESS IS A NETWORK SECURITY AUDIT

Businesses everywhere face the consistent threat of data breaches and the cost of a data security breach is an expense every company wants to avoid. In order to minimize that risk to your organization, partnering with network security professionals such as G6 Communications to perform a network security audit is imperative.

Taking the initiative to conduct a network security audit, not to mention simply taking your business security seriously, is a best practice for any organization that can expose every security vulnerability your business has, so at the very least you know exactly what needs securing or improving.

A Network Security Audit Reveals Significant Problems

According to a survey of IT executives and network administrators, 46% of companies that follow through with a network security audit discover the results identify significant security problems. Considering the survey results, your business is likely already at great risk for significant security problems and a data breach.

A Network Security Audit Helps Maintain Regulatory Compliance

A thorough network security audit can help maintain your systems' security and provides you critical insight into what's running on your network at all times and why. Another benefit to your organization is that it ensures you are up to date on any and all regulatory compliance factors - HIPAA, PCI, Sarbanes-Oxley and many others.

A Network Security Audit Limits Business Risk

You didn't build a successful business without creating a plan first, and of course taking that plan seriously. Using technology in business is a necessity to continue down a successful path, but conducting regular network security audits are an integral part of maintaining a healthy and safe network. If your technology infrastructure isn't secure, your business is at risk.

Knowing exactly where your network infrastructure is weak and how you can shore those areas up to enhance the overall security of your network greatly benefits your entire organization. G6 Communications offers military-grade IT security threat prevention services and has trained professionals at the ready to keep your data safe from malware, hackers, and other security threats.
